I want to use that function twice in one playbook. I thought I could declare the results as variables and use @syntax operator to reference them in my play. What I tried: -- - name: Compute records time hosts: "{{ groups.sync_groups }}" vars: records_time: "{{ compute_records_time(remote_hosts=remote_hosts, db=dev_db_name, user={{ account_id }})" remote_hosts: "{{ ansible_hostname }}" tasks: - debug: msg: records_time When I run the script, it gives me "msg": "Looking for variable 'records_time' in known_hosts but it was not found. Please specify the name of a variable to look for, or delete the known_hosts file" But if I change the line to - name: Compute records time hosts: "{{ groups.sync_groups }}" vars: @records_time: "{{ compute_records_time(remote_hosts=remote_hosts, db=dev_db_name, user={{ account_id }})" tasks: - debug: msg: "@records_time }}" I get the desired output "msg
